

Week 3 – 6 Reflections

Unfortunately, I've missed these individual reflections as I thought they were nonobligatory. Here is a quick recap of the previous missed weeks.

What do I want to learn or understand better?

As I'm new to most of the topics in this course, I felt that I had a lot to learn. Regarding both the different coding practices and languages, and the scrum applications. With coding, I wanted to learn more about and be more comfortable with React, Javascript and Typescript as these were completely new to me. As for scrum, after the first sprint I was still not comfortable with it and needed to work more on understanding the INVEST and SMART criterias. For these weeks, there were a lot of learning by doing and I although I was getting more familiar with it, I was still not completely comfortable by the end of week 6.

How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

As I'm new to this, it has been hard for me to help anyone with learning something new. For the most part the group have helped me.

What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

My contributions during these weeks have not been very significant. I've participated in the meetings and discussions about the scrumboard.

What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

During these weeks my contributions has been to take notes and summarize for the team reflections. I have also been working with Daniel, as I don't trust that I can commit and merge successfully and not screw up the project/repository. I've been working with some of the user stories related to the selling page and the ads.
